VALLEY COAL MEN AWAIT DECISION

Interested in Action of Public Service Commission—
Will Meet Tonight

WILL PERFECT ORGANIZATION

Monongahela valley coal men who lead from wagons will strengthen their organization tonight at a meeting to be held in Charleroi in the customer's room of the Bank of Charleroi. Already the wagon dealers have a temporary organization and it will be solidified.

No decision on the latest case of the Pennsylvania Railroad has yet been handed down by the Public Service Commission so far as the wagon shippers have been able to learn. The latest effort was one to inaugurate the use of box cars in place of coal cars for the wagon loaders. A hearing was held Monday at Harrisburg when the Monongahela valley shippers had a representative present to look after their interests. Reports will be made tonight of the result of the meeting. Matthew Lynn of Dunlevy is the chairman of the local organization, Peter Lee is secretary and T. J. Crombie is treasurer.

TEMPLARS MAKE ELABORATE PLANS FOR COMING CONCLAVE

No body of Knights Templar in western Pennsylvania is making more elaborate plans for the sixty-fourth annual convocation of the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania, to be held in Pittsburgh on May 21, 22 and 23, than Allegheny Commandery No. 35 of the Northside.

The Sir Knights of No. 35 feel that this is to be a peculiarly "their" convocation, inasmuch as included on their roster are the two most prominent Templars in the state, Lee S. Smith, Grand Master of the Grand Encampment of the United States, and Andrew G. Williams, Grand Commander of Pennsylvania.

Grand Master Smith has under his jurisdiction more than 20,000 Knights, the Grand Commandery of Pennsylvania being the second largest in the United States New York taking first place by a margin of only a few hundred members.

CALIFORNIA PEOPLE ARE ADVISED TO BOIL WATER

"Boil your water."
This advice is given to the people of California by the state health department.

The high waters in the Monongahela during the past few days put the California Water company's plant out of commission and to accommodate its patrons the company sought the state's permission to connect with the lines of the Mountain Water company which supplies the Pennsylvania railroad and parallels the California company's lines. It was advised that while the mountain water was supplied to the California people they be advised to boil their water.

MACHINES TO BE PUT IN USE

The Vesta Coal company has struck coal in driving entries at their No. 1 mine back of Dunlevy and are working three shifts a day in their hurried efforts to put the mine in shape for the beginning of immediate operations. So far only pick mining has been followed, but next week it is expected the company will inaugurate the use of machines.

Coal now being taken out in the preliminary work is being stocked until such time that it can be moved. It will not be long until the mine is active with a large output.

SAYS SUIT WAS FOR COAL UNDERMINED FOR PROPERTY

To the Editor of the Mail:

The suit of E. J. Latour against T. J. Crombie reported this week was for coal undermined from his property and not surface damages. In the suit it was maintained also that the coal was not removed before Mr. Crombie purchased the same. A compromise was reached by Mr. Crombie purchasing the lot.

HICKORY PRODUCES EGG BIGGER AND REAL FREAK

John O. White, a well known farmer of Mt. Pleasant township, has come to the front with a big egg that promises to keep Hickory to the fore-front. He has a hen that produced an egg measuring 8 1-2 inches the longest way around and 7 1-4 inches the other. When cooked and opened it was discovered to be an unusual freak as well. Instead of the usual yolk, a fully formed egg with hard shell was found inside.

EDWARD MANSFIELD DIES AT HIS HOME IN FAYETTE CITY

Edward Mansfield, aged 48 years, well known as an undertaker of Fayette City died suddenly at his home there Thursday night at 10:30 o'clock. He was taken ill at 5 o'clock the same evening, but was not considered critical until a few minutes before his death. Two sisters, Misses Ida and Mollie Mansfield of Fayette City and one brother, Harry Mansfield of Chattanooga, Tenn., survive. Mr. Mansfield started life as a clerk on a boat and later worked as a clerk for a coke concern and clerk in a store.

WILL PETITION STATE TO HELP IMPROVE RIVER ROAD

The three county commissioners today met representatives of Speers and Dunlevy boroughs relative to the proposed improvement of the river road between Speers and Coal Centre. Different boroughs and townships along the route are organizing to petition the state to enter into a scheme of improvement. The townships and boroughs agree to pay one-fourth, the county one-fourth and the state one-half, the road being a state road. The plan is meeting with considerable favor.

FOOD TROUBLES ARE UPPERMOST

Fear of Valley People in Case of Strike is
From Shortage

TRAINMEN REFUSE TO REcede

The worst danger to the Monongahela valley will come from inability to get food shipments, in case of a general railroad strike. While the valley would not be first affected by the proposed strike, it would be hard hit later on if the strike order is carried out.

Trainmen today in conference in New York absolutely refused to back down and said an eight hour day was their minimum. They are carrying out their strike orders. Only a back down by the roads it is believed will save the situation. The conference with mediators was continued this morning.

FULL VERDICT FOR PLAINTIFF IN SUIT AGAINST LOCAL COMPANY

In the suit of the B. F. Sturtevant Co. against Regan & Hornell of Charleroi, the jury Friday returned a verdict in favor of the plaintiff for $638.78, with interest from August 31, 1914, the full amount of the claim. The suit was based on a bill for two electric fan propellers, which the defendant firm bought for installation in the new high school building at Charleroi. The contention of the defense was that the propellers were not up to specifications and had to be taken out of the building. The case had been on trial for several days.

COYLE THEATRE

TEMPLAR TOURNOI IS BIG FUNCTION

Previous Efforts Outdone by McKean Commandery in Annual Affair

MUSIC IS PRIME FEATURE

From all parts of the Monongahela valley and from a distance people came Friday night—Knights Templars in full Templar uniform, white plumes waving, Master Masons and sons under twenty-one, and ladies—to attend the annual tournoi and reception held in Might's auditorium by McKean Commandery No. 80, Knights Templar. Color was not lacking and the affair assumed rank as the most brilliant and enjoyable of the several such functions held in recent years. More than 500 persons were present.

The first part of the evening's diversion was that of the reception program, which was as follows:

Overture, "Zampa," Herald, Jenkins' orchestra.

Flute and cornet duet, "Titt' Sarsade," F. L. Rosomme and Joseph Franks.

Reading, selected, Miss Pearl Willis Algeo.

Saxophone duet, sextet from Lucia, Edward G. Wheeler and F. L. Rosomme.

Soprano solo, "Angels Guard Thee," Bergette, from Jocelyn, Godard, Miss Ethel Barth, accompanist, Miss Bertha Easton.

A grand march was to have been a fitting close to the reception program, but the immensity of the throng caused a rearrangement of that part of the program. Dancing was started instead, with a dance program including complimentary and other numbers of decided interest. Jenkins' orchestra of ten pieces furnished the music for the occasion and outdid their best previous efforts.

Dancing continued until about 1 o'clock. Special transportation arrangements enabled visitors from other towns to reach their homes in brief time.

Shortly before midnight a buffet luncheon was served under the direction of Caterer D. F. Ferguson, as prepared by Wagner's. Favors given included Knight Templar chapeaus, blue lodge rosettes and tickers. Snow balls likewise were given and a little later the affair was enlivened by informal snowball battles that raged as people danced.

Decorative effects were unusual and elaborate. The entire auditorium was a mass of color and beauty. Palms and flowers were used effectively at every point of vantage and blooming potted plants enhanced by their color the general scheme of harmony. On windows Knight Templar decorative chapeaus lent dignity, and over each window was suspended an

BETTER OFF IN PRISON

It doesn't really matter whether or not that ill-district man who shot a Charleroi policeman the other morning had made serious threats. It is said he had. Anyhow, he seems a sort of bad to have at large.

The man had been in trouble down town and had used a gun all too freely. When the police started to ferret him out, they knew with whom they were dealing and it was not without thought of danger that they went to his home. The door was opened. He was behind it and when Policeman Corey walked in to make the arrest the man it is said poked his gun into the policeman's abdomen and pulled the trigger. His intentions were only too plain. A bullet saved the life of Policeman Corey and the quick crack of another policeman's gun prevented further loss of blood or life.

A prison sentence of healthy length is the best thing for a gunman. Prison is the best place for such. It is the best place because it teaches the lessons of discipline a gunman sadly needs and because it protects the community from further trouble at his hands.

DR. JOHN S. VANVOORHIS

Because few men ever reach four score and ten years and retain their activity, the evils of those who do are especially conspicuous. So with Dr. John S. Van Voorhis, who died Friday morning after attaining the ripe old age of 94 years.

At the age of 90 Dr. Van Voorhis retained that keenness of mind and all the physical vigor which marked his earlier years. He was a worker and thinker all his life time and there was not let up when old age stole upon him, weakening his frame.

Dr. Van Voorhis was a man who occupied an important niche in the life of the community where he lived. An able physician, he gained a wide reputation for his medical work and in the evening of his life, for his medical papers, drawn from his lifetime experiences in the treatment and handling of some of the most puzzling cases. Particularly was he successful in his treatment of fevers and one of his best papers was entitled, "Fever of the Valley."

He took an interest in politics because he sensed the opportunity to do his friends and neighbors a service. He was an advanced thinker, with a broad conception of the duties of a lawmaker and constructionist.

Because he enjoyed the work he wrote prolifically. His treatises on Monongahela valley and western Pennsylvania subjects possess an historical merit that makes them valuable to any library. For his ability and leadership he will be missed, but he leaves behind a record of accomplishment that blazes a broad trail for future generations to note and follow.

St. Patrick, Redeemer of Ireland, His Life and Religious Work

Although there is a difference of historical opinion as to the birthplace of St. Patrick, all history is agreed as to his greatness. His works have lived and there is little concern now whether he was born in Scotland or France. It is probable, however, that his native place was Kildpatrick, near Dumbarton, Scotland, and that he first saw light in A. D. 387. His father was a Christian Deacon and his mother a devout Christian.

In early life Patrick devoted himself little to things religious. Twice he was stolen away by pirates and twice he came back. Each experience made a deep impression on his mind. Through close observation of bad men he learned to be a good man.

When he made a voluntary pilgrimage to the European Continent he associated himself with a church man as St. Martin of Tours and then with St. Germain bishop of Auxerre, who ordained him a priest. In A. D. 410 he went to England and then to Rome where he was presented to Pope Celestine I. The Pope gave him the name of St. Patrick and sent him to convert Ireland in A. D. 432.

The high virtue and whole-souled sympathy of the Saint are revealed in his "Confession," which are accredited as authentic.

Of his work among the Irish people he says: "After I had come to Ireland, more and more the love and fear of God grew in me, and my faith and zeal were increased so that daily I said a hundred prayers, a night's too."

How far he traveled during his ministry in Ireland may be gleaned from this excerpt from his work: "The gospel has been preached wherever there lives a soul. I went about everywhere for your sakes in many dangers, even to the farthest district, beyond which nobody lived and where no one had ever gone to baptize or to ordain clerics or to encourage the people. By the help of the Lord I have done all these things most faithfully and freely for your salvation."

When St. Patrick went to Ireland he found "Hibernians who never had the knowledge of God, but always till now worshipped idols, and unclean things." But after his apostolate he tells us that "The sons of Scots and daughters of kings have become monks and virgins."

ments that blazes a broad trail for future generations to note and follow.

WHAT OTHERS THINK

PAINTSTAKING OFFICIAL

Washington county does not have a more earnest, efficient and painstaking official in its employ than G. Evans Mikesell, sealer of weights and measures. Mr. Mikesell has made his office worth a hundred times more than it costs the people. When the times come the taxpayers should promote him to a better job because he has earned it; to a bigger job because he has proven his interest in the public welfare.—Dorcas American.

AILING POOR DEFENDANTS.

There was considerable discussion about the creation of the office of public defender to have charge of the defense without cost to the defendant in criminal trials in other words a lawyer elected to defend persons charged with offenses against the law just as a district attorney is chosen to prosecute them, says an exchange.

Various objections have been made to this. In New York an effort is under way that has the same object, but is proceeding by a different method. An association known as the Volunteer Defenders' committee has been organized to supply competent counsel to needy defendants. It has the backing of some very prominent citizens and lawyers of that city and promises to accomplish a great deal of good.

The defendant who has no means with which to hire counsel is now faced by the fact that he will be prosecuted by a district attorney who is chosen by reason of his competency and knowledge of the law. If he the defendant is without counsel, who may or may not be the equal of the district attorney. Hence he is liable to suffer from a disadvantage from the very beginning of the trial, and even before. The state should be willing to provide as competent a defender as prosecutor. It doesn't do so, always, by any means.

Furthermore, theoretically it should make no difference whether a defendant is or is not able to hire counsel. He should not be compelled to do so. The state that plays for the prosecution of the case against him should pay for his defense, especially if he is found not guilty.

However, regardless of that, this committee plans a work that is needed. That will, if we are not mistaken be a strong factor in promoting real justice. It is to be hoped its activities or those of organizations patterned after it, will eventually be extended over a wide territory.—Butler Eagle.

AND VEGETABLES

This talk of back yard vegetable gardens is all very proper—proper and practical and economically necessary. Nevertheless those of us who have foolishly preferred sweet peas to peas of the edible order, dahlias to tomatoes and roses to potatoes, do not find it altogether easy to be proper and practical or to obey without grumbling the commands of economic necessity. We are willing to plant and raise and eat our vegetables, but we must have the satisfaction of making the most of our sacrifices. They say, of course, that it takes little room for a vegetable garden. A space of

JUVENILIA FOR AMERICANS.

(From the Minneapolis Journal)

Europe says of us that in literature our tastes are juvenile. Perhaps they are. Juvenilia, after all, is the sort of thing our reading public pays for. In defense our plea, of course, is youth. The plea is good, but the question remains whether we are ever to be grown up in our literary taste.

Because his books are juvenilia, Robert Louis Stevenson has been popular with us. Keeping likewise. And juvenilia flourishes right in our midst—the no longer young Mr. Tarantington is waxing rich, or so we suppose, by his delineation of "seventeen." What was the great Mark Twain but a big American boy to the end of his days, and isn't it by his boys that he will be remembered?

Very youthful youth, and age that isn't aged—they are celebrated by our writers, the reason being that the readers of these writers are all young in thought, in hope, in outlook. Mr. American Business Man outside business is a regular boy; and the wife of him dresses like her daughter even when past fifty.

Our America looks out from our shores as an alert, bright boy looks out the window upon the lively street. Nothing cleverer than America, or more characteristically youthful America digs into work hard in order to earn the wherewithal for amusement. America doesn't find amusement in the latter our books in children's minds.

20 feet or so each way is supposed to be sufficient for a small family. The difficulty is that for those of us who have become enamored of our flowers there is never a foot or two feet and much less 20 feet to spare. Giving up a corner of the flower garden for the raising of vegetables is like giving up one of the children to make room for a rich old aunt. Nevertheless, the thing has to be done, and the first question is, of course, which one of the children is to be sacrificed? Is it the perennial bed that must go or the space for the annuals? Is it the pansies or the poppies, the asters or the gaildardias, the roses or the gladiolus? Clearly it is impossible to uproot and discard any of the flowers that have been with us long. It is decided that it will be easier not to order any annuals. This decision, together with the arrival of the seed catalogues, precipitates another struggle. The flower gardener has never wasted much time over the first pages of the catalogue. He has skipped by the pictures of cauliflower and head lettuce and radishes and hurried on to the more delightful possibilities of the flower section. There are no delightful possibilities for him today. He must begin with the vegetables at the beginning and consider nothing more alluring than beans and onions. He knows little of beans, onions or peas or radishes or beets. He looks at their pictures and reads descriptions of them and finds the pictures and descriptions alike confusing in their unanimity of perfection. Meanwhile his fingers stray into the pages of the back of the catalogue, where his well known flower friends are pictured and his mind wanders with his fingers. Reluctantly but determinedly he comes back to the vegetables. His list is finally made out. It is a proper and practical and economically necessary list. He has begun to be a backyard vegetable gardener.—Indianapolis News.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

The school concert was about to begin. Four little girls were dressed to represent the word "star" and each had one letter of that word pinned on to her snowy white frock. Each letter began the verse of a touching little song.

"Now," said the teacher, "form yourselves in position and wait until the curtain goes up."

The little girls did as they were told, and while the piano played the accompaniment the curtain went up.

Instead of applause to greet the little girls, deep silence from the audience met them. They had got into the wrong order, and the word they spelt was "rats."

Two women traveling in the same passenger coach could not agree about the window, and finally appealed to the brakeman.

The brakeman scratched his head in perplexity, until an old gentleman sitting nearby proposed:

the other smother to death, and then the rest of us can finish our journey in peace."

RELIEVES WRECK PROVES EXTRA CREW ON TRAIN IS NOT A PREVENTION

The facts which have been ascertained as the result of a careful and thorough investigation of the wreck of a freight train and an Adams Express train, which occurred in February 25, 1917, near Bristol, are believed by the management of the Pennsylvania Railroad to furnish a practical demonstration of the truth of the contention that the "extra crew," or so-called "full crew," laws not only fail to increase safety, but actually encourage indifference to duty. The wreck was caused by a "hot box" which burned off a journal of the eleventh car from the engine of the freight train, detaching that car and ten others. An Adams Express train, about 1/2 pass on the adjoining track, in the opposite direction, ran into the derailed freight cars, with the result that the fireman and three attendants on the Adams Express train were killed. The freight train was manned in accordance with the terms of the "extra crew" laws. It consisted of 33 cars, the three cars in excess of the number of 30 requiring the employment of an additional brakeman.

CANONSBURG MAN IN JAIL FOR VIOLATION OF PAROLE

Sad Piccolo, king of the Italian colony of Canonsburg, is in jail, held without bail for violating his parole, in again entering into the liquor business. Piccolo was taken into custody Wednesday upon a bench warrant issued at the instance of Parole Officer Frank B. Mitchell. The request of Piccolo was made by Deputy Sheriff William Greenlee.

Piccolo now faces a year's imprisonment in the workhouse. On August 25, 1916, Piccolo entered a plea of guilty to violating the liquor laws. At that time the court hesitated about granting a parole for the reason that he had been a persistent offender. However, the court agreed to the parole, but imposed a severe sentence. Piccolo was required to pay $1,000 fine and the costs, which he did. There was also a condition attached that if he violated the parole, he would be imprisoned in the workhouse for one year. The court let him understand at that time that if he was brought before him again there would be no parole—he would have to take his punishment.

George Beban, the celebrated portrayer of Italian characters, who will be seen at the Coyle on Tuesday in the Oliver Morosco Paramount picture, "His Sweetheart," prepared a Christmas tree for the children in the neighborhood of the Morosco studio in Los Angeles. It is said that in keeping with his Italian characterizations he decorated the tree with garbs instead of the customary strings of popcorn. Supporting Mr. Beban in the cast of this original drama are Helen Jerome Eddy, Harry Devere, Sarah Kernan, Kathleen Kirkham, Robert E. Holson and others.

American Aviators of French Army in Impressive Ceremony Before Wash- ington's Monument in Paris

American aviators and surgeons serving with the French Army at Louilly did not fail to observe the anniversary of Washington's birthday. They are shown here participating in a glorious fete arranged by the Society of the Sons of the American Revolution in front of the George Washington statue in Place D' Jena, Paris. It was a big day for Americans in Paris. The occasion forged another binding link in the friendship between the United States and France.

STANDARDS OF BASKETS ARE FIXED BY ACT OF CONGRESS

Standards for Climax baskets for grapes and other fruits and vegetables were fixed by congress at the last regular session. Standards are the quart basket, four-quart basket and twelve-quart basket respectively. The new law will go into effect November 1, 1917. It was deemed necessary by reason of the present wide variance in the sizes of such baskets. The salient features of the new law, explained by Senator O. Evans, Missouri, follow:

(a) The standard two-quart Climax basket shall be of the following dimensions: Length of bottom piece, eleven and one-half inches; width of bottom piece, three and one-half inches; thickness of bottom piece, three-eighths of an inch; height of basket, three and seven-eighths inches, outside measurement; top of basket, length eleven inches and width five inches outside measurement. Basket to have a cover five by eleven inches, when a cover is used.

(b) The standard four-quart Climax basket shall be of the following dimensions: Length of bottom piece, twelve inches; width of bottom piece, four and one-half inches; thickness of bottom piece, three-eighths of an inch; height of basket, four and eleven-sixteenths inches, outside measurement; top of basket, length fourteen inches, width six and one-fourth inches by fourteen inches, when cover is used.

(c) The standard twelve-quart Climax basket shall be of the following dimensions: Length of bottom piece, sixteen inches; width of bottom piece, six and one-half inches; thickness of bottom piece, seven-sixteenths of an inch; height of basket, seven and one-sixteenth inches; outside measurement; top of basket, length, nineteen inches, width nine inches, outside measurement. Basket to have cover nine inches by nineteen inches, when cover is used.

Sec. 2. That the standard basket or other container for small fruits, berries and vegetables shall be of the following capacities, namely, dry one-half pint, dry pint, dry quart, or multiples of the dry quart.

(a) The dry half pint shall contain sixteen and eight-tenths cubic inches.

(b) The dry pint shall contain thirty-three and six-tenths cubic inches.

(c) The dry quart shall contain sixty-seven and two-tenths cubic inches.

Sec. 3. That it shall be unlawful to manufacture for shipment or to sell for shipment, or to ship from any States or the District of Columbia, any Climax baskets or other containers for small fruits, berries, or vegetables, whether filled or unfilled, which do not conform to the provisions of this Act.

This shall not apply to baskets for export trade. Reasonable tolerances and variations will be fixed. No dealer shall be prosecuted under this Act when he can show a guaranty signed by the manufacturer, wholesaler, jobber or other party residing within the United States from whom Climax baskets, or other containers, as defined in this Act, were purchased, to the effect that they were correct within the meaning of this Act.

GOVERNMENT AGENTS STOP ALLEGED PLOT

Stop Put to Supposed Activities of Man in Pittsburgh Operating. It is Believed From Mercenary Motives To Blow up Plants

Destruction of munitions plants on a mercenary basis of so much per plant is the game believed to have been contemplated by Charles Van Mennen, alias Israel D'Arcadia, aged 34, according to Federal authorities who had him placed under arrest Friday in Pittsburgh. Van Mennen had been staying at the Hotel Henry and he was caught in a government net after being decoyed by a government agent disguised as a German Embassy attache incognito.

Van Mennen was arrested Friday afternoon at Fifth avenue and Grant street, Pittsburgh by city detectives and was committed to the county jail to await deportation on a charge of being an undesirable citizen. The arrest was ordered from Washington by the Bureau of Immigration.

His apprehension is an evidence of the rigid surveillance which the government is maintaining in this city on persons of foreign birth. The arrest in this instance is directly due to Van Mennen's eccentric mode of dress.

According to W. W. Sibbey, immigration officer in charge of this district, Van Mennen is a Belgian by birth, but was recently a lieutenant in a French-Canadian battalion. His resignation was requested for some reason. The Government say and made him bitter against the cause of the Allies. He came to the United States from Montreal, Canada, seven weeks ago.

Van Mennen's plan, as so far unfolded by the Government men, was to work himself into the confidence of wealthy men of German leanings, propose to them plans for blowing up American munitions plants which are working for the Allies and then to engineer the plan, purely with the idea of receiving compensation.

FOUR CARS OFF TRACK ON REDSTONE BRANCH

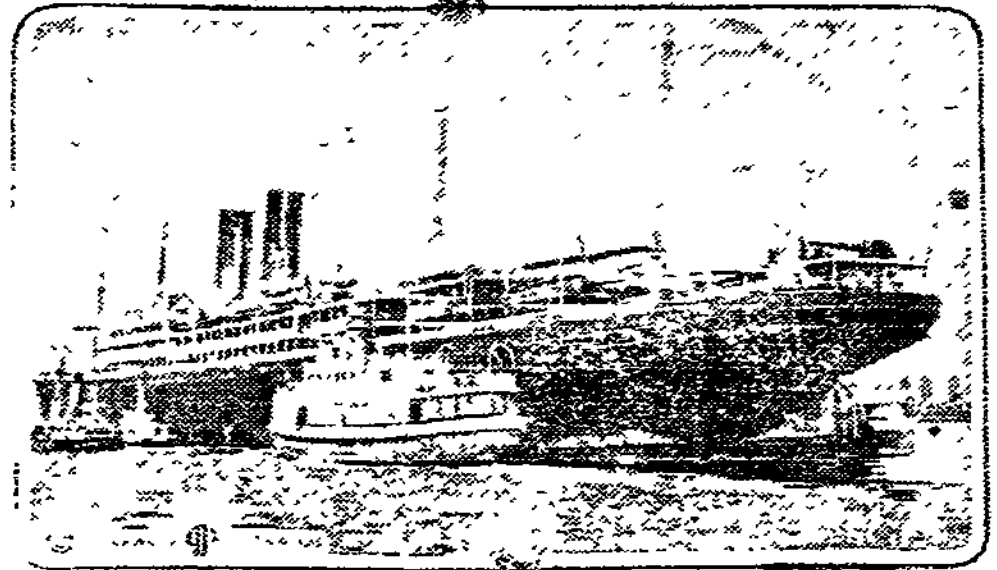

Four cars went off the track of the Redstone branch at Tippecanoe Friday afternoon. The Uniontown train due here at 5:54 was delayed more than three hours and then a transfer was necessary.

PITT WILL GIVE O'HART FOURTH ATHLETIC LETTER

The University of Pittsburgh's basketball team closed their season last week with wins over the five representing the University of Buffalo and Carnegie Tech. The same night the Varsity quintet played their last game of the year. The Freshmen passers also made their last regularly scheduled appearance. The past season although a successful one did not come up to the record made by the teams the two preceding years. The record for this winter shows a total of thirteen wins out of nineteen played and in the case of two of the defeats later victories over the same aggregations evened matters. The average for the season was close on to 700 but this does not equal the record made by last year's five when they dropped only two out of eighteen games played.

For the first time in all the 137 years of history of the institution an athlete has been awarded his fourth letter in as many sports, James DeHart who this season made his first appearance in intercollegiate basketball competition is the athlete to first achieve this honor. Many have been awarded letters in two branches a number in three but up until now no one had ever been able to accomplish the feat of grabbing off four. It is a record that has been tried for by numerous athletes for years but it was left to the versatile DeHart to finally accomplish the seemingly impossible task.

PROMISING AN. WELL IS DRILLED IN GREENE COUNTY BY MANUFACTURER'S GAS

A new oil well, said to be good for at least 500 barrels per day has been struck in the Manufacturers' Light and Heat Co.'s No. 4 well on the Warrick farm in Springhill township, Greene county. It is the first of the four wells being drilled by the company on the Warrick farm to come in.

Officials of the company say that apparently a pool of considerable extent has been found. The same company's test well on the Moose farm, closely adjacent to the Warrick farm, was drilled near the top of the sand. The owners are figuring on this well coming in a gusher. It is located about 600 feet from the 1,000-barrel well drilled in a short time ago on the George Isaminger farm.

The Manufacturers' Light and Heat Company has a total of 16 wells drilling in the Springhill township field and most of them should be completed in the near future.

The pay was tapped at the Warrick No. 4, it is officially reported at 9 o'clock at a depth of about 3,300 feet. The well was immediately shut down and an oil saver was put on, after which drilling was resumed at 1 p. m. At 3:30 the hole had filled up 3,000 feet. A short time later the well made a flow of 21 barrels in eight minutes, the field report states. It was said that as soon as the boiler could be moved the well would be drilled deeper.
